Stop losing students.
Start understanding them.

In the U.S., 36% of college students don't complete their degree within six years (NCES, 2022). MirrorTalk, an innovative verbal reflection tool, helps universities boost student success and retention by providing personalized support at scale.

Active engagement

MirrorTalk transforms passive students into engaged learners by guiding them through verbal reflections, helping to connect their personal experiences to their academic community.

Early intervention

MirrorTalk's analytics help universities detect early warning signs of student struggles, enabling proactive support before issues escalate into retention risks.

Academic confidence

MirrorTalk builds student confidence through guided verbal processing of coursework, while providing faculty with insights into student perspectives to inform their teaching.

Community connection

MirrorTalk strengthens campus community by helping students verbalize shared experiences and challenges, making them more likely to seek out peer connections and campus resources.

> Teaching freshmen, I see how screens hold them back from experiencing university life. That's why MirrorTalk is great - it gets students talking instead of clicking buttons. It's what they need to break out of their shells and connect with others on campus.
